

INTRODUCTION

It was a mostly quiet week in Olympia. On Tuesday, the House and Senate were each in session, passing measures that they had already passed earlier this year, but which died in the opposite chamber. One hearing of note did occur in the House Finance Committee relating to aerospace manufacturing tax credits. That hearing is described below. There are also discussions relating to broadband access, and ports continue to be included in these efforts. A bill was introduced on this topic today, and is described below.

Some education funding discussions are reportedly occurring behind the scenes, but the major revenue discussions remain on ice. This pattern is likely to continue for another week or two. The Governor is signing bills this week, though as of press time none of significance to the port community.

LEGISLATION PERTINENT TO PORTS

ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT

Aerospace Tax Credit Rollbacks: On Tuesday, the House Finance Committee heard two measures that are designed to pressure The Boeing Company to stop decreasing its employment levels. HB 2145, sponsored by Democrats, removes the 2013 B&O and other tax incentives (including one for aerospace manufacturing as a port tenant) if employment levels fall by certain percentages. HB 2146, sponsored by Republicans, is a similar approach but pegs employment decreases below a hard 75,000 total number. Both measures received a mixture of support and opposition, including opposition from the Port of Moses Lake. They remain in Committee, with an uncertain future.

Port Broadband Telecommunications Authority: (SB 5935 and SB 5679) - While negotiations continue with a broad stakeholder group on the extensive range of telecommunications issues facing the legislature, a new bill has been introduced in the Senate which encompasses many of these subjects. SB 5935, under a broad title, integrates language from the Senate version of the ports broadband bill (SB 5679) with sections addressing the development of a rural broadband program, pole attachments, and equipment citing on municipal rights-of-way. Both bills expand the geographic limits of port broadband authority, allow wholesale infrastructure deployment beyond port district boundaries, and permit exclusive contracts for the provision of retail services. The bills will remain available for trading fodder, but face an uphill battle as talks proceed at a slow pace.
